HONGKONG, NOVEMBER 22ND, 1803.

In an article on torture in China our Shang. hai morning contemporary arrives at the conclusion, lame and impotent as it confesses; that the use of torture under existing. conditions is the only means of discovering truth and of enforcing the deterrent agency of the law. "Existing conditions" is an elastic phrase which may be made to cover anything. We need hardly say, however, that our contemporary does not write in approval of the practice, though it seems to regard it as inevitable. The writer says :- "The reform " of criminal jurisprudence in China at the "initiative of the wiser and more intelligent "governing class is, we take it, extremely "unlikely. Remote as it is, the only chance of "improvement seems to be in the growth of a " wealthy and aggressive middle class, deter-" mined, as in the West, to reform abuses and ." to share legislative power. To this class we "China lies the difficulty of the reformer. THE CLUB O. THE NAVY. A match number Rugby roles was played you orday afternoon at the Happy Valley between ie Club and the representatives of the Navy fast and capital game ensued resulting well wan victory for the Club by 4 points to 2 that is, 2 tries to 1. The game requires little description, the play being of the most give and take description all through. During the first half Dr. Atkinson with a good ran secured a try, but Lieut. Strick was unsuccessful in his attempt to convert this. On a change of sides the Navy equalised, but towards the end Dr. Atkiuson ngain achieved a brilliant try which was not converted. The play all through was exceptionally brink, but mostly in the contre of the field. The teams were:-Club-Lieut. Jordan, Liont. Strick, F. W. White, Dr M. Atkinson, Lieut. Atkinson, Capt. Stewart. Lient, Robinson, Lieut, Luard, E. S. Ezekiel, Lient. Payne, J. M. G. Manuk, Lient. Masefield, H. P.
